We have so much of which to be proud! Are we sure a month is enough?

First and foremost, we are proud of who we are, the LGBTQ+ family and its allies -- unabashedly proud of what makes each one of us an individual. We are proud of what we stand for, how we present, what we contribute to the world we hold close and the world at large. We are proud of who and how we love! And that alone is worthy of personal celebration every day of the year!

We pause this month, though, to celebrate the collective pride that the LGBTQ+ community at large, and its allies, so well deserve, not just for who we are, but how we have bettered the world for all. We celebrate the way we have stepped up to earn respect as leaders, change agents, mentors, contributors to the greater good in countless areas. Whether it be education, finance, entertainment, sports... we are showing up out front and making a difference!

For example, the Human Rights Campaign recently reported that “The number of openly LGBTQ+ elected officials in the United States grew by more than a fifth in the past year, with a record high of some 840 gay, lesbian, bi and trans people in office across the country.”

Already in 2021, as further evidence of LGBTQ+ community leaders paving the way for all Americans, Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg became the first openly gay Cabinet member confirmed by the Senate. As well, we saw Dr. Rachel Levine assume the role of assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health and Human Services, the Senate’s first confirmation of an out transgender federal official.

And this past year, as the globe struggled physically and emotionally to grapple with the unprecedented medical challenges of the pandemic, countless LGBTQ+ health care workers led the way. Here in Chicagoland, the heroic contributions of these talented individuals are made possible because they work for organizations that affirm and celebrate them. In the past year, the Human Rights Campaign Foundation, after rigorous review and testing, awarded the coveted LGBTQ Healthcare Equity Leader award to 26 of Northern Illinois’ healthcare systems who achieved a perfect 100 score in its assessment of their “policies and procedures related to the equity and inclusion of their LGBTQ patients, visitors and employees.” With this kind of commitment, LGBTQ+ health care workers have been able to give their very best, tirelessly providing life giving support to their patients. In so doing, they have provided to all of us an example of dedication, focus and love in service to others. Is there a loftier achievement of which to be proud?

So, this month ... Pride month ... OUR month ... Let’s step out and take a bow!

FEDERAL

President Biden issues a proclamation on International Day Against Homophobia, Biphobia and Transphobia (IDAHOBIT). The statement notes global progress on LGBTQ+ rights and includes the effects of COVID-19 that widen economic, social, and safety gaps for LGBTQI+ people — and that an epidemic of violence still rages for trans people, especially women of color. It also notes gaps in nondiscrimination protections in many U.S. states.

President Biden announces reinstatement of Obama-era rule prohibiting healthcare discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity. Under the new policy, the Department of Health and Human Services will once again prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity by health care organizations that receive federal funding. This reverses the previous administration’s policy that said anti-discrimination provisions of the Affordable Care Act of 2010 did not apply to transgender people.

COURT

ACLU of D.C. and public defender’s office sue D.C. Dept. of Corrections for housing trans woman in men’s unit of D.C. jail. Sunday Hinton has been housed in the men’s unit since April 26th, according to the lawsuit. “I would like to be housed in a general population women’s unit because I am a transgender woman and identify as a woman,” Hinton said in a statement.

Federal judge dismisses lawsuit against the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference. The suit alleged that Connecticut’s trans-inclusive student athletic policies were harmful to cis-women and girls. Andraya Yearwood and Terry Miller, two transgender student athletes who were named in the lawsuit, were allowed to join the lawsuit in defense of Connecticut’s inclusive policies. The decision noted that “courts across the country have consistently held that Title IX requires schools to treat transgender students consistent with their gender identity.”

GLOBAL

Japan - President of Tokyo 2020 Olympics calls for greater LGBTQ+ awareness in Japan. The Olympics President, Seiko Hashimoto, said “When we look back on Tokyo 2020, I want people to think that it was a turning point for diversity, unity, and understanding LGBTQ, so we need to take action now. And that is Tokyo 2020’s responsibility.”

Study shows LGBTQ+-friendly companies more profitable. Academics at two universities in Finland assessed the financial performance of 657 publicly-traded U.S. companies between 2003 and 2016, and found that firms with LGBTQ+-friendly policies tend to enjoy both higher profitability and higher stock market valuations.

At least eight openly transgender athletes competing in Tokyo Olympic Games this summer. Until this point, an openly trans athlete has never competed in the Olympics, and Tokyo is set to change that. The hopefuls hail from five different countries and include Olympic vets who weren’t previously out, as well as promising young competitors. PFLAG New Hampshire is proud to support track and field athlete CeCe Telfer, who was the first openly trans woman to win an NCAA championship when she won the Division II 400m hurdles in 2019.

2021 breaks record for most anti-LGBTQ+ legislation passed in one calendar year. 17 anti-LGBTQ+ bills have been signed into law this year, breaking the previous record of 15 set in 2015. An additional 11 anti-LGBT+ bills are sitting on governors’ desks waiting to be signed into law or vetoed while dozens more are moving through state legislatures across the country.

Top platforms are unsafe for LGBTQ community, new GLAAD report says. The report comes a few months after those surveyed in a Pew Research Center study in January said about 68% of lesbian, gay or bisexual adults who said they have been harassed online think it occurred because of their sexual orientation. Check out the May 13th episode of Something to Talk About Live, where we discussed the report and its ramifications for our LGBTQ+ loved ones.

News from PTI Chicago
by Christine Peters

PTI Chicago hosted our second Book Club during our monthly meeting on Thursday, 5/13/2021 with 19 participants. We enjoyed a lively discussion of the excellent memoir by Senator Sarah McBride entitled Tomorrow Will Be Different: Love, Loss, and the Fight for Trans Equality, with the foreword written by Joe Biden. She is currently Delaware’s state senator, making her the highest-ranking transgender official in the US. PTI Chicago paid for and sent copies to interested members. It’s a fascinating, inspiring read.

As parents, many of us appreciate the patience McBride showed as her mother and father experienced a range of emotions when she came out to them. They supported her work as a trans advocate, even as they struggled to fully affirm her as their daughter. Sarah needed her parents to see and love her as her true self: “Each of us has a deep and profound desire to be seen, to be acknowledged, and to be respected in our totality. There is a unique kind of pain in being unseen. It’s a pain that cuts deep by diminishing and disempowering, and whether done intentionally or unintentionally, it’s an experience that leaves real scars.” (p.35) McBride describes her family as they rally around her, explains the complexities of politics and legislation, and shares her heart-breaking love story. Throughout, she demonstrates remarkable persistence and determination, which have made her a success despite the odds. Currently, Senator McBride serves as chair of the Health & Social Service Committee, working to make Delaware the 10th state to ensure paid family medical leave. Read more about her work here:

10 people attended our May meeting. New co-leaders of PTI McHenry Mary Genzler and Courtney Milligan joined the Zoom call. We welcomed new members as well as regulars and friends from our sister group PTI Chicago.

All parents and other family members of transgender, non-binary, and gender diverse individuals are welcome to join our Zoom meetings on the 4th Wednesday of every month, at 7-9 pm. If you are not on the PTI McHenry mailing list, please email opendoors@pflagillinois.org to receive a meeting link and password.

Now that CDC guidelines suggest that vaccinated people may return to normal social interactions without masks, we must start planning to reopen face-to-face meetings. I hope that we will be able to implement a hybrid format, allowing remote Zoom connections as well as in-person attendance. However, our reopening depends on the host providing our meeting space - Tree of Life Unitarian Universalist Congregation. Toni Weaver, the leader of PFLAG McHenry chapter which uses the same space, has communicated with TOLUUC and shared their response with us. In short, the church will start gradually reopening some activities, but we have to wait longer. We will keep you updated.

We are going to have a guest at our June 8 meeting:

Jeannie Gainsburg is an award-winning educational trainer and consultant in the field of LGBTQ+ inclusion and effective allyship. She is the founder of Savvy Ally Action and author of the book, The Savvy Ally, which was recently featured as Teaching Tolerance magazine’s professional development staff pick for spring 2021. Jeannie has a BA in psychology from Brown University and an MA in social work and social research from Bryn Mawr College. She was under the impression that a citation was the result of driving too fast until January of 2019, when she received one from the New York State Assembly for Distinguished Educational & Human Rights Services for her work in promoting LGBTQ+ rights and inclusion. Her encouraging, passionate, and warm-hearted approach will surely jumpstart even the most tentative ally. Visit her website and download free ally goodies at: www.savvyallyaction.com.

Jeannie has shared two free handouts:

- Savvy Ally Action Parenting Handout
- Savvy Ally Action LGBTQ+ Inclusive Schools

Join our Zoom call on June 8th, at 7-9 PM.

We had a good ZOOM meeting on May 23rd. Our speaker was John D’Emilio who is the chairman of the board at Gerber-Hart Library. He is retired now from UIC, where he was a professor of history and gender studies. He has written several books in his field. He has made extensive use of the library archives for research.

He told us about the history of Gerber-Hart which started as a library where people could check out books on LGBT subjects that were not readily available from bookstores, or from other libraries. It gradually collected all sorts of LGBT magazines, newspapers, articles. It is an amazing resource for anyone researching topics in LGBT history. His book, Queer Legacies: Stories from Chicago’s LGBTQ Archives [see next page] sounds like an amazing collection ferreted out by John from the archives at Gerber-Hart. (https://www.gerberhart.org/)

We highly recommend him as a speaker. His email address is: demiliojohnny@gmail.com

For our June 27 ZOOM meeting our guest speaker will be author Kim Oclon.

Kim Oclon’s debut young adult novel, MAN UP, was released in April 2020. It centers around a talented baseball player, his (secret) boyfriend, and the acceptance and support everyone searches for and needs. Join Kim as she discusses starting a GSA at the high school where she worked, what inspired her to write MAN UP, and learn about the novels featuring LGBTQ characters she read while writing. Kim will also share some recently published titles, from pictured books to novels, featuring a diverse cast of characters.

Having a meeting in June is quite unusual for us. We don’t meet because our meeting is usually on Pride Parade Day. Maybe in July we’ll be able to meet in person!
mission of the PTWC, which is the largest conference of its type, is to educate and empower trans individuals on issues of health and wellness, recognizing the need for expertise surrounding trans health & wellness to rise from within the community. We shared the link to the conference center website and encouraged interested people to register https://www.mazzonicenter.org/blog/announcing-2021-philadelphia-trans-wellness-conference.

In May, we also recommended the 2019 documentary, Born to Be, which follows the work of Dr. Jess Ting of the Mount Sinai Center for Transgender Medicine and Surgery in New York. This documentary provides an intimate look at how one doctor impacts his patients and how they in turn have impacted him. Born to Be can be found free on Kanopy (provided by many library systems) and for a small fee on other streaming platforms.

The highlight of our May chapter meeting was our guest speakers a transgender man and his wife presenting “Being Trans; A Tadpole’s Journey.” For their privacy, we are not sharing their names. Our speakers shared their transition process, reactions from friends, family and co-workers and what it is like to be seen as a cisgender straight couple by those who are not aware of their private situation. They graciously answered our questions and spoke about the difference between privacy and secrecy. When asked how parents can support their transgender children, they mentioned giving the child agency; ask questions like “How do you want me to discuss your previous life?”, ”How do you want me to share older pictures of you?” and ”How do you want me to correct people who mis-gender you or call you by the wrong name?” In other words, don’t assume, ask. Both of our speakers were amazing, and we want to thank them again for joining us.

We will meet again, virtually in June. Our meeting is on Father’s Day, June 20th so we will not have a speaker but instead, spend more time supporting each other on our journeys.

We welcomed Lizzy Appleby to our May meeting. Lizzy is the Youth Program Director of Youth Services in Glenview/Northbrook. (But you do not have to be a resident of these suburbs to take part. As Lizzy says, “If you can get there, we welcome you.”) She manages several programs including the Pride Youth Programs. Youth Services also provides individual and group therapy services. Lizzy spoke to us about Pride Youth, parental support and affirming communications.

Pride Youth Program offers social, support and leadership programming for more than 250 LGBTQ+ youth, ages 4-24. There are no geographical restrictions and all services are free. Pride Youth consists of prideConnect, prideSupport and prideLead.

- prideConnect offers social and community events including a Trans Youth and Family Summit, movie nights, game nights and bonfires.
- prideSupport provides weekly peer groups for grades 2-4, grades 5-7, grade 8 and high school.
- prideLead offers youth leadership programming for high schoolers and Action Camp, a 5 day sleepover camp for grades 8-12.

Youth Services also provides parental support through resources and referrals. Lizzy noted how often she refers parents to PFLAG and reminded us that parental support is the #1 predictor of positive outcomes for LGBTQ youth.

Lizzy also spoke about affirming communication and what that sounds like. She asked us to “keep the door open” for our children even when their doors are closed! The door opening techniques mentioned:

- Be available and willing to talk
- Avoid shame and judgement
- Validate and empathize
- Be curious
- Wonder aloud

Use “SOY”, as in saying: “Some people...; Other people....You might...”

Get support and education for yourself, don’t rely on your child.

We are so fortunate to have Youth Services and Lizzy Appleby available to us and our children. In a perfect world, everyone would have such access. Her contact information: Lizzy.appleby@ysgn.org
Youth Services: 847-724-2620 x121 office

Following Lizzy’s presentation, we divided into small groups for our own peer to peer support. Sue shared her experience as she attended Equality Illinois’ LGBTQ Advocacy Day. There are several bills in the General Assembly that could use your support. Call your senators and representatives. To find out what these bills are, contact Equality Illinois. We will keep zooming for as long as necessary. You are always welcome to join us. Happy Spring!

Our May 2nd speaker was Steve Andersson, who until recently was a member of the Illinois Human Rights Commission. He talked about the Illinois non-discrimination laws as they apply to LGBTQ people. Steve is a knowledgeable and interesting speaker, who is also a compassionate and accepting professional. We enjoyed listening to and exchanging ideas with him. As an LGBTQ ally, Steve strongly believes in equal rights.

Before his term on the Illinois Human Rights Commission, Steve was a Republican state representative and was a co-sponsor of the Illinois LGBTQ+ educational curriculum bill. Following his term, Gov. Pritzker asked him to become a member of the Illinois Human Rights Commission. There are 7 full time commissioners. Steve recently resigned when his term was up. He was asked to stay on but prefers the advocacy portion of working for equal rights. He now works with the GOP for the ERA and is a governmental lobbyist in Springfield. Steve feels that LGBTQ+ rights benefit more than their community. He said he is an empathetic, sensitive person and these values are important to him.

Every person who makes a state claim of discrimination has their case heard within a year. The filing is free. The hearings for the Commission are not court-oriented in Illinois. There is one Act in Illinois – the Illinois Human Rights Act – and there are two agencies - the Human Rights Commission and the Illinois Department of Human Rights. The Department investigates, while the Commission judges cases brought before it. If the Department does not take a claimant’s case, they can then appeal to the Human Rights Commission.

One recent case of note was Sommerville v. Hobby Lobby, a complaint brought by a trans woman who was forbidden from using the women's restroom. Hobby Lobby refused but was willing to create a restroom for her use. Hobby Lobby argued this accommodated her. The Commission decided this was an adverse action and she was entitled to monetary damages, because she was not allowed to exercise her rights and was treated differently than other women.

Steve understands that people have a fear of filing a complaint, and of retaliation, but he encourages filing because it is the only way to promote change. He told one more story that reflected his compassion. He took a one-week vacation in Florida, where he rented a house and put his Pride flag up the flagpole. He received many looks, and then the police showed up and told him there was a rule in the community that only American flags can be displayed. Steve said to us, “We can all fight in different ways. If there is one kid who walked by in that rich community and was helped and needed that message, it was worth it.”

Our June speaker is Ghirlandi Guidetti, who works at the ACLU, and will talk about their LGBTQ and HIV project.

People have a fear of filing an [Illinois state claim of discrimination], and of retaliation, but [Steve Andersson] encourages filing because it is the only way to promote change.
NEW BOOK: TAKING FLIGHT

Taking Flight: One Transgender Woman’s Journey is a lifetime look at love, work, relationships, and dreams, peppered with wit and wisdom. It is the story about the author transitioning at the age of 65 as a “Blended Spirit” who accepts both her male and female life experiences but still chooses to affirm her gender. Unlike many transgender individuals, Ashley has never felt that she was born into the wrong body. In addition to her own transgender experience, Ashley was an assistant facilitator of transition support groups for two years with the LGBTQIA+ Center in Las Vegas, NV. Prior to that, she retired twice from a 35-year career in public service, winning eight innovation awards during that time.

Written for a broad audience, this book helps readers better understand what life is like as a transgender person, whether readers are transitioning themselves; are family members, friends, or coworkers; or are employers, health professionals, or community leaders seeking first-person equity and inclusion training. The stories are colorful and deeply honest—sometimes painfully raw—but always heartfelt. Wherever you describe yourself on the gender spectrum, this book will give you an opportunity to expand your own perspective.

Dear friends,

This year we have seen a slew of atrocious bills introduced in states that target and criminalize health care providers for providing evidence-based gender-affirming health care services to trans youths. As a community, we understand that for many trans kids, these services are not only essential, they are life-saving.

It is comforting to know that health and behavioral health care providers also understand this. That’s why with the collaboration of GLMA, we were able to send an open letter to the National Governors Association signed by over 1600 health and behavior health care providers opposing these discriminatory and dangerous bills. A clear indication that health care experts are on our side.

If you work in health care services as a provider or a trainee, it is not too late to sign on to our open letter! Please share this with your networks so that we can continue to show up for all trans youths across the country.

Like always, I have nothing but gratitude for our resiliency. Together we will fight so that every trans kid can live a full and authentic life.

In solidarity,
